Dr. Ralph Sabio, who wrote the research paper, is currently connected with St. Scholastica's College Manila as Chairperson of the Business Management Department. In an interview with him, he said that he is very passionate on writing papers about efforts to propagate the cause of open learning and distance education and how schools respond to doing corporate social responsibility—the cause of AIDE being on widening student access to higher education. He added that such best practice is worthy of a research article and journal publication, hence the reason for this presentation at the 6th GHEF International Conference in Malaysia. See page 3

GHEF 6.0 sought to achieve the following objectives: a) to serve as a platform for dialogues and discussions as well as to share research findings on current global trends, issues and development in the higher education ecosystem, b) to provide opportunities to exchange institutional, national regional, and international perspectives with regards to various higher education issues, c) to facilitate collaborations in the provision of higher education, and d) to create guidelines on the way forward for sustainable developments of higher education.

The paper about AIDE OFW students will be published in a book in Malaysia or in an ISI journal in the future.
